Unity Bank funds triage facility

Unity Bank has made a donation to support Hunterdon Medical Center's response to the COVID-19 crisis, the Hunterdon Healthcare Foundation reported.

Funds will be used to erect a free-standing Respiratory Illness Center to triage patients, the foundation said in a news release. It will be located in the back of Hunterdon Medical Center in a parking lot with easy access to the hospital.

"We are thankful to Unity Bank for their commitment to supporting our healthcare providers and keeping our community safe during this critical time of need," stated Phil Beekman, senior vice president, Hunterdon Healthcare Foundation.

Unity Bank has supported Hunterdon Healthcare as a Corporate Donor since 1991. From annual donations and sponsorships of many health programs throughout the growing footprint of Hunterdon Healthcare locations, to investing $250,000 in 2015 with a multi-year pledge to support the healthcare needs of the community and aid development projects such as the Norman and Denise Guilloud Cardiovascular Center. The overall combined mission of the Unity Bank and Hunterdon Healthcare partnership is to improve the quality of life of all our residents, according to the news release.

Opening in 1991, Unity Bank has 19 branches operating in seven counties.
